Video Redaction for Hospitals

In a hospital setting, protecting patient privacy is of the utmost importance. When incidents occur involving the public, such as in the Emergency Department, law enforcement may request video footage as part of an investigation. However, the hospital's legal department must ensure compliance with HIPPA regulations, which often restrict the sharing of identifiable patient information with third parties.

How Equature Can Help

This is where Equature Studio comes in. Our powerful video redaction software allows hospitals to blur or block out the faces and other identifying details of individuals not involved in the incident before sharing the video with law enforcement or other external parties. No longer will your security team have to spend hours manually editing footage - Equature Studio automates the redaction process.
